

THE HALL-MILLS CASE

A Daily Picture Story of the Mysterious Jersey TragedyWatch for Tomorrow's Installment

Rising from the banks of the majestic Raritan, New Brunswick in 1909 was a bustling community, a typical college center, with its attendant business activities, a city rich in civic pride and boasting many of the so-called "proud old families."

In that year there came into its everyday life a young minister, out of seminary only a short time and just assigned to the pastorate of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, one of the most exclusive places of worship, whose congregation represented much of the city's wealth.

Fate had selected the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall for a role far different than he essayed as an honor boy in the old Grace Church choir in New York or at the General Theological Seminary.

Modest and good looking, he became popular, and it was not long before the marriageable young women began to cast amorous glances in his direction, as they listened to his sermons.

Hall Jury Puts
Simpson on Grill

those already subpoenaed by Simpson would be called, Snyder declared: "I'm sorry, but I can't answer that either, at this time."

Other members of the grand jury, it was learned today, are standing solidly behind Foreman Snyder in his defiance of Simpson.

On the other hand, Simpson is admittedly afraid of the jury. When he sought indictments against the Hall-Stevens clan, Simpson hurried before the April jury, rather than wait until the present body convened.

When he petitioned the Supreme Court in Trenton for a "foreign jury," Simpson charged that the September jury was composed of "Republican office holders, friends of Beekman and adherents of Senator Clarence Case, defense counsel."

It is also reported that the grand jury is anxious to proceed without Simpson, that it may clear Mrs. Minna Clark, because it believes that the evidence brought against her as an accessory is so flimsy that her acquittal is inevitable.

It is probable that the jury will also dismiss charges against Felix De Martini, Hall detective. The Supreme Court in Albany has held that Simpson's case against De Martini does not warrant the detective's extradition to Jersey.

If the grand jury finds that Simpson has a case against Mrs. Clark or De Martini it may indict over the head of Simpson, who insists he will not be ready to proceed until Friday.

Should that body decide that Simpson's evidence against the two is insufficient, it may formally rebuke the special prosecutor by announcing publicly that both arrests were "hasty and ill-advised."

The unexpected action of the grand jury has turned the spotlight on the exhumation of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills's body, which will take place, according to report, at Van Lieu Cemetery, New Brunswick today.

An order giving the prosecution permission to open the grave of Mrs. Mills is said to be in the hands of Patrick Hayes, Simpson's aid. A similar order will be sought to exhume the body of Dr. Edward Hall, now in Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn.
